NORMAN CHANDLER
Newspaper Publisher
Los Angeles, California

BIOGRAPHICAL DATA:

Norman Chandler was born September 14, 1899 at Los Angeles, California. He has been associated with the "Los Angeles Times" since 1922, working in all departments. Since 1945 he has been President and Publisher. He is associated with many business interests including KTTV, Inc., (TV); President and Director of Rancho Santa Anita, Inc.; Director, Safeway Stores, Inc., et cetera. His office is listed as 202 West First Street, Los Angeles, California.
(Who's Who in America, 1954-1955)

RELATIONS WITH THE BUREAU:

The Bureau has had cordial relations with Mr. Chandler and the "Los Angeles Times" for many years. In 1939, however, some serious difficulties arose between the FBI and the "Los Angeles Times" and Mr. Chandler, necessitating a visit by Assistant Director Hugh H. Clegg. This incident concerned a reporter of the "Los Angeles Times" by the name of Taylor Trumbo who reportedly made serious derogatory remarks against the Bureau and against the Director personally. Trumbo also alleged that the FBI was not dealing fairly with the press. The matter was taken up several times with Mr. Chandler. In addition, by letter dated February 9, 1939, the Director advised Mr. Chandler in great detail concerning Mr. Trumbo. Chandler by letter dated February 20, 1939, replied that he had talked with Mr. Trumbo who had denied the substance of the "somewhat general charges made in your letter." He requested that the Director set forth the charges in a more specific manner.

On March 6, 1939, the Director again wrote Mr. Chandler setting forth the information in even greater detail. By letter dated March 27, 1939, Mr. Chandler replied setting forth answers by Mr. Trumbo. Chandler commented that he regretted that Trumbo had lost his temper, "but after all, from his point of view, there was provocation." He hoped that some method could be worked out whereby newspapers and newspapermen could cooperate with the local office of the FBI "rather than wait to hear from Washington what has happened in their own precinct." Chandler added that he hoped the Director after reading the other side of the question would agree with him that "Mr. Trumbo is guilty of nothing more than a flare of temper."

As a result of this exchange of correspondence, the Director instructed Mr. Clegg to investigate the situation. Mr. Clegg interviewed the various individuals involved, including Mr. Chandler, and by letter dated April 6, 1939, reported that he felt that the matter had been settled. He reported the results of his conversation as summarized by Mr. Chandler's statement: "If we agree that Mr. Trumbo will behave himself and be a gentleman and if Mr. Hood (then the new SAC at Los Angeles) will receive him and be gentlemanly about it, is there any reason why the entire misunderstanding cannot be forgotten and relationships continue on a basis of friendliness." Mr. Clegg said that he agreed with this observation. (94-8-150-62X-80) On January 21, 1947, Mr. Warren Francis of the "Los Angeles Times" called to see the Director. Francis stated that he had a personal message to deliver from Mr. Norman Chandler. Francis indicated that Chandler was particularly anxious that the Director reconsider an invitation which had been extended to him to speak before a group in Los Angeles. (62-876-124)

INFORMATION IN BUREAU FILES:

In the investigation entitled "Ludwig Hans Wolfram, was., Espionage - G" (1941) Norman Chandler of the "Los Angeles Times" was interviewed for any information he had regarding Wolfram inasmuch as it had been reported that Chandler, among others, had allegedly been given letters of introduction to high ranking Nazi officials on the occasion of his visit to Germany in 1936 by Wolfram. Chandler advised that he knew Wolfram only casually and that if such letters had been written his brother, Harrison Chandler, would probably be the person informed about them. (65-2907-67 and 37)

On May 28, 1943, an informant gave the Bureau a Photostat copy of a program bearing the signatures of a number of well-known Nazi sympathizers who attended a party which was given by the former ~~the~~ German Consul at his residence in Los Angeles just prior to Austrian Anschluss. Among those individuals signing the program was listed Norman Chandler. (Chandler was identified as Vice President and General Manager of the "Los Angeles Times.") An informant mentioned that it was his understanding that Chandler, as well as other individuals who visited Germany with letters of recommendation from Hans Wolfram, were royally entertained and that their trips through Germany had been expedited by the German Government. (65-16543-30)

A letter from Los Angeles dated December 12, 1945, reflected that the name "Norman Chandler (L.A. Times)" appeared in a card index file found among the effects of the former German Consulate at Los Angeles. (65-26108-20)

An informant advised that preparations were being made for a reception at the Russian Consulate (November 7, 1943) for about 150 guests to celebrate the anniversary of the Russian Revolution. From information furnished by the informant, it was determined that Norman Chandler, President of the "Los Angeles Times," was among those invited. (65-33716-31)

In 1954 the Bureau conducted an Atomic Energy Act-Applicant investigation on Dorothy Chandler, wife of Norman Chandler. Her brother was identified as Harry Buffum, operator of Buffum's Department Store in Long Beach, California. The name of Harry Buffum, department store operator, was reported in 1945 to have appeared on a list of names of persons in the Long Beach area possibly interested in the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee. Furthermore, his name appeared on a list of individuals proposed as sponsors of this Committee in Long Beach in 1945. Harry Buffum, with no further identifying data, was reported to be a member of the Russian War Relief Committee in Long Beach in 1944. (116-409210-4)

In 1939 serious difficulties arose between FBI and Taylor Trumbo, a reporter for the "Los Angeles Times," who reportedly made serious derogatory remarks against the Bureau and the Director personally. Following an exchange of correspondence with Mr. Chandler, Assistant Director Clegg investigated the situation pursuant to the Director's instructions, whereupon this matter was resolved. Chandler reportedly visited Germany in 1936 and allegedly he had been given letters of introduction to high ranking Nazi officials by Ludwig Hans Wolfram, identified as the subject of an Espionage - G investigation. (1941) Chandler reportedly was invited to a reception at Russian Consulate in 1943. The name of Harry Buffum, Chandler's brother-in-law, was reported in 1945 to have appeared on a list of names as possibly interested in the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee and as one proposed as a sponsor of this Committee in 1945.

SAC Los Angeles advised Mr. Bauer that he was not in a position to make any commitments for the Director but he did know that the Director is extremely busy and has found it to be most difficult to be away from Washington for an appreciable length of time. No investigation has been conducted by the Bureau concerning Chandler. Bufiles reflect that Chandler reportedly visited Germany in 1936 and allegedly was given letters of introduction to ranking Nazi officials by Ludwig Hans Wolfram, subject of 1941 "Espionage - G" investigation. Chandler has advised that he was only casually acquainted with Wolfram. In 1943 information was furnished that Chandler's name appeared on a program of a party held at the residence of the former German Consul in Los Angeles prior to the Austria Anschluss. It was reported that Chandler was invited to a reception at the Russian Consul in Los Angeles in 1943. The name of Harry Buffum, Chandler's brother-in-law, was reported in 1945 to have appeared on a list of names as possibly interested in the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee and as one proposed as a sponsor of this committee in 1945. The Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee has been cited by the Attorney General. In 1939 difficulties arose between the Bureau and Taylor Trumbo, reporter for the "Los Angeles Times" who reportedly made serious derogatory remarks against the Bureau and the Director personally. Assistant Director Clegg investigated the situation pursuant to the Director's instructions, whereupon the matter was resolved. Cordial relations were reestablished with the "Los Angeles Times."

By letter dated 4-20-55 Mr. Robert J. Bauer, President of the Better Business Bureau of Los Angeles, invited the Director to address a meeting of that organization in September, 1955. By letter dated 4-25-55, the invitation was declined. On 5-16-55 a letter was received from Chandler indicating that he had attempted to contact the Director, who was out of the city, in connection with the above invitation. Chandler advised he later saw the Director at the Banshee Luncheon in New York and expressed his regrets for not being able to speak to him.

Dear Mrs. Chandler:

I was indeed sorry to learn of the death of your husband and want you to know his passing leaves a void in the journalistic world. Although mere words are of little solace at a time such as this, my associates and I hope you will take some comfort in knowing we share your

Norman Chandler, Builder of Publishing Empire

From News Dispatches

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 20.

— Norman Chandler, former publisher of the Los Angeles Times and a builder of one of the great American publishing empires, died early today. He was 74.

He died of cancer at about 3 a.m. in Good Samaritan Hospital here, where he was operated on three weeks ago, a spokesman said. It was his second surgery this year.

Mr. Chandler was a third-generation publisher of the family-owned Times. He retired as publisher in 1960 in favor of his son, Otis, then 33, but continued to preside over the expansion and diversification of the Times Mirror Co. into various fields.

During his 50 years with the Times, Mr. Chandler helped build it from one of a number of competing newspapers in Los Angeles to the city's dominant newspaper with a circulation of more than a million.

Under his guidance, the Times became the nation's second largest journal in daily circulation, the biggest in advertising and one of the nation's most influential.

The Times owned $5.5 million in assets the year Mr. Chandler went to work for the newspaper and today, ranking as one of the top three media operations in the nation, grosses more than $600 million annually.

At the time of his death the former Times publisher was chairman of the Times Mirror Co.'s executive committee and director of the Times Mirror Foundation.

In a statement issued following Mr. Chandler's death, Nixon said:

"A close friend, a worthy citizen, and an honest and forthright leader in the communications field, Norman Chandler will be missed by all Americans.

"His good works and his newspaper will serve as monuments to his life, but his personal qualities, his warmth, dignity and devotion to others, will not be easily replaced. I will always remember him as one of the finest gentlemen I have ever known."

Mrs. Nixon joins me today in grieving the death of Norman Chandler. To his wife, Dorothy, and to his two children, we extend our deep condolences. They will take great pride in the life he lived, because he served so many others before himself."

Katharine Graham, publisher of The Washington Post, said: "Norman Chandler played a decisive role in the development of a great American newspaper, and his career did credit to the traditions of a great American publishing family."

He built the Times Mirror Company into one of the largest and most distinguished communications companies in the country. He was a great friend of the community in which he lived. And above all he was a warm and good friend to those who knew him."

The silver-haired, craggy-faced Chandler and his wife, Dorothy Buffum (Buff) Chandler, were influential in Southern California's economic, political and cultural life.

He was born in Los Angeles Sept. 14, 1899. His grandfather, Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, was publisher from 1881 to 1911, and his father, Harry Chandler, was publisher from 1917 to 1944.

Norman Chandler was a boy of 11 when the Times was the target of a dynamite attack by radical unionists in 1910.

Mr. Chandler's first job on the Times was delivering papers in a Model T Ford. After graduation from Stanford University in 1922, he began a seven-year apprenticeship that took him through all departments of the newspaper.

Mr. Chandler ran the Times—the biggest newspaper in the West—in much the same mold as his grandfather and father. Among other things, the newspaper generally favored Republicans and opposed unions.

Recalling the 1940s and the 1950s, Mr. Chandler said in an interview, "We were kind of lopsided in those days. If we gave the Republicans a big story, we'd give the Democrats a small one. And we only gave management's side in labor disputes."

With son Otis directing the Times, the elder Chandler supervised the growth of the Times Mirror corporation.

Through acquisitions, it became a publisher of encyclopedias, paperbacks, atlases, dictionaries, medical books and periodicals, legal treatises, charts and maps.

The Times Mirror Co. also acquired the Herald, the N.Y. Newday and the Los Angeles Coast Pilot, and the San Francisco Chronicle.

Mr. Chandler was the company's "knowledgeable."

He once said: "The world today, with its rapid changing education, is exploding in growth. The life have always man's ingenuity distribution of has become the '60s.'"

Mr. Chandler's assistant to the publisher from 1929 to 1934, then general manager to 1936, vice president to 1941, president to 1945, and president from 1945.

He was chairman of the board and president from 1961 to 1966, chief executive officer from 1966 to 1968.

He was chairman of the five committees of the board of directors. He was chairman of the Associated Press years beginning in 1946, was elected in 1946 and was elected first president in 1946 and

He was a trustee of the California Institute of Technology, the California Club, the Club of San Francisco, and the

In addition to his son, Mr. Chandler survived by
